Fund drive tops goal; Lycoming gets Kresge grant

Lycoming College has received a $150,000 check from the Kresge Foundation in full payment for its "challenge" grant toward the Physical Education and Recreation Center.

Lycoming received the check shortly after reaching the Partners in Progress Fund's $3.1 million goal by May 15, the deadline set by the Troy, Mich., foundation.

The grant, which is included in the $3,101,170 raised to date, actually pushed the fund drive "over the top" of its goal, and established the physical education center as a debt-free building.

After reaching the goal, Lycoming President Dr. Frederick E. Blumer said: "May 15 will be a day to remember. Lycoming College met the Kresge challenge by completing the most successful fund drive in our history. Trustees, alumni, and friends united, and today we have a new, debt-free physical education/recreation center..."

Because the Lycoming College Report is not published in July or August, the next issue will reach you in September. Until that time, if you have any suggestions to improve the Report, please contact us.

Have a good summer!
--The Editors

"This response shows clearly how much people love this college," he added. "I want to thank all of them... We are grateful for their response to the challenge and for their continuing loyalty to Lycoming College."

Although the fund drive has ended officially, Lycoming will continue to accept gifts and pledges for the recreation center until August 31. Gifts and pledges of $180 and above will be recognized on a share-plan donors plaque to be located in the entrance lobby of the new building.

A breakdown of total giving shows that foundations and corporations provided the major share of gifts and pledges to the campaign. Foundations provided $1,024,173; corporate support totaled $922,083. Alumni, parents, and friends gave $993,908, including $378,343 from trustees. Bequests brought in the remaining $161,006.

Many donors also are paying pledges ahead of schedule. So far, $2,314,967 has been paid, and pledge balances outstanding total $786,203.

If you can, make a payment on your pledge balance today; it will be appreciated. New pledges, gifts, and accelerated payments of pledges should be sent to:

Nursing proposal gets final OK; search for director begun

Lycoming's proposal to offer a nursing program has received its final approval, thus erasing the last regulatory obstacle in the way of launching the new bachelor of science degree program.

With the approval of the Pennsylvania Board of Nurse Examiners, Lycoming has begun the search for a nursing program director--the first step toward actually getting the program off the drawing board. The director will be hired to recruit faculty members and prepare a curriculum. The college is seeking a director with a doctoral degree and master's in nursing.

If a director can be hired by the fall semester, Lycoming will begin recruiting students for the program for the 1982 fall semester. Projections indicate that 75-80 students per year will enter the program with approximately 300 in training by 1985 and every year thereafter. If nursing students are admitted in the fall of 1982, they would begin taking nursing courses by 1984, probably earlier.

Their initial courses would be those needed to fulfill Lycoming's distribution and other requirements for a four-year degree.

Most nursing students are expected to come from Pennsylvania, particularly Central Pennsylvania, where a critical shortage of nurses exists. But the college also will recruit potential nursing students from the same areas it recruits other students, including New York and New Jersey.

Recruiting faculty to teach in the program actually may be more difficult than recruiting students, according to the study done to determine the feasibility of Lycoming offering a cost-effective program.

The minimum requirement for a faculty member is a master's degree in nursing, according to the study. And, since there is a well-documented shortage of nursing faculty in Pennsylvania and the nation, says the feasibility study, recruitment of sufficient and adequately credentialed faculty is expected to be a continual problem in the near future.

Lycoming is expected to recruit faculty from the six Pennsylvania schools offering master's programs in nursing: The Pennsylvania State University, the Universities of Pennsylvania and Pittsburgh, Duquesne and Villanova Universities, and Widener College. It is estimated that 12-15 faculty members will be needed eventually to teach students taking nursing courses. At least five faculty members will be needed immediately to plan the program, including faculty with backgrounds in adult, child, maternal, community, and psychiatric/mental health care. Later, a nutritionist and pharmacologist probably will be added to the faculty.

Factors that do not appear to pose any problems for the start of the nursing program are the availability of facilities and space at Lycoming, and the number of clinical agencies that could provide learning experiences for

Two alumni nominated for judgeships

Barring any successful write-in campaigns, Lycoming County's two newest Court of Common Pleas judges will be a Lycoming graduate and a former Lycoming student.

Judge Clinton W. Smith '55, of Williamsport, who was appointed to his post early this year and confirmed recently, and Lycoming County Solicitor Robert J. Wollet '54, of Williamsport, were nominated by both the Republican and Democratic parties in May's primary election to run for 10-year terms this fall. Both Republicans cross-filed, with Smith running first and Wollet running second on each ballot.

Smith, 47, currently is serving a term that will expire at the end of 1981. He was nominated for the judgeship by Pennsylvania Gov. Dick Thornburgh in January. The state Senate confirmed his appointment in April. He was sworn in as Lycoming County's third judge in late May.

Wollet, 54, is in his second term as county solicitor; he held that post from 1972 to 1975, and was renamed solicitor in January, 1980.

Until Smith assumed his judgeship, he was a member of the law firm of Stuart, Murphy, Smith, Mussina, Harris and Rieders, of Williamsport. He is married to the former Mary C. Johnson '59; they have a son.

Wollet is a partner in the law firm of Wollet and Anderson, of Williamsport. He is married to the former Marguerite R. DiSalvo; they have four children, including Chris-time '82.

Smith earned his law degree from Dickinson School of Law in 1958. A year later, the Duboistown native was admitted to practice law in Lycoming County, and became associated with the law firm of former Judge D. M. Larrabee and Don L. Larrabee '23. Five years later, Smith was named an assistant district attorney to Henry G. Hager, of Williamsport, now Pennsylvania Senate majority leader. He held that post until January, 1968, during which time he helped to form the law firm of Stuart, Murphy, Hager, and Smith.

Wollet earned his law degree from the University of Pennsylvania Law School in 1956, after graduating from Bucknell University in 1953. He attended Lycoming from 1951-52, transferring to the Lewisburg school. In 1957, he was admitted to practice law in Lycoming County, and became associated with the law office of Michael J. Maggio. He maintained that association until Maggio's death in 1972. He formed his current partnership with Dudley N. Anderson in January, 1980.

The couple met at Dickinson College when he was a senior and she was a freshman from Williamsport, where her father, the Rev. J. E. A. Bucke, was pastor of Newberry Methodist Church.

Medical missionaries get Wertz Award

A retired couple who served as medical missionaries to Nepal and Haiti were honored June 9 by Lycoming at the Annual Conference of the Central Pennsylvania Conference, The United Methodist Church, held at Bloomsburg State College.

Drs. Edgar and Elizabeth Bucke Miller, of Liverpool (PA), received the second "Bishop D. Frederick Wertz Award" for outstanding service to the church. Named in honor of the former Lycoming president who is now resident Bishop of the Washington Area of The United Methodist Church, the award is presented to clergymen or lay persons who have given exceptional service to God through the church.

The Millers, who received the award from Dr. Frederick E. Blumer, Lycoming president, spent 10 years in Nepal in the late 1950's and early 1960's as part of a pioneer medical missionary venture. They went to Nepal when he was 57 and she was 54, giving up a successful medical practice of 30 years in Wilmington, Del.

For their work, they were decorated by the King of Nepal, and invited by former President Johnson to honor the King and Queen of Nepal at a White House dinner. Although the Millers retired in 1965, they have come out of retirement twice since then to travel to Haiti as medical missionaries.

The couple met at Dickinson College when he was a senior and she was a freshman from Williamsport, where her father, the Rev. J. E. A. Bucke, was pastor of Newberry Methodist Church.

Comedies summer fare

The Arena Summer Theatre curtain will rise on a schedule of three contemporary comedies this year, according to Dr. Robert F. Falk, professor of theatre and theatre director. The season will be the 17th for summer theatre at Lycoming.

Alan Ayckbourn's British comedy, "Bedroom Farce," opened the season June 18-21 and 25-28.

The Broadway hit, "Da," written by Hugh Leonard, will be the second offering. It will run July 2-5 and 9-12.

The season's final play, Ernest Thompson's "Golden Pond," will be performed July 16-19 and 23-26.

The latter two plays are being released this summer for the first time for staging by amateur theatrical groups outside of New York City, Falk said. He describes both plays as "sentimental, family entertainment."

As they have for years, the casts of the plays will again be made up of local and regional professionals, amateurs, and students.

Campus continues as summer conference favorite

An estimated 3,400 conference attendees will join Lycoming's summer-term students on campus this summer and keep it a very busy place.

Approximately 800 Jaycees from throughout Pennsylvania opened the summer conference season May 29-31 with a training workshop sponsored by the Williamsport Jaycees. They were followed to the campus on June 12-14 by the contestants for the title of

The process, completed flawlessly, took about two hours.

Rogers describes his sculpture as three pieces that fuse into one. He has remained at Lycoming for the early part of this summer, putting the finishing touches on "Triad."

Grants from the Women of Lycoming, the senior class, and student government helped finance the project.

Miss Pennsylvania Teenager, who competed for the crown in Lycoming's Physical Education and Recreation Center.

Events still scheduled for the campus this summer include a leadership session for members of the Pennsylvania Parent-Teachers Association, a judicatory meeting of the Northumberland Presbytery, two five-day International Cheerleading Foundation camps, a youth convocation of the Northeast Jurisdictional School of Evangelism, and a visit by the White Oak Baptist Choir.

Other events include three Elderhostel sessions, which bring senior citizens to campus to take special courses; the annual visit and show of the Susquehannock Region of the Antique Automobile Club of America; weekend and weekday school of missions of the Central Pennsylvania Conference of The United Methodist Church, a World Cheerleader Council camp, and a family life conference of the Episcopal Diocese of Central Pennsylvania.

Faculty offices, student housing, and classrooms are available at the college. The only major need is for a nursing laboratory with at least six client units, storage space for supplies and equipment, and separate room for demonstration purposes. The college already is investigating several possible existing sites for the laboratory. Any site chosen will have to be renovated.

There appears to be at least 20 different nursing homes, community health agencies and organizations, and hospitals available, willing, and within easy commuting distance to provide learning experiences for nursing students. Among them are the four hospitals in Lycoming County and the Pennsylvania Department of Health Center in Williamsport.

The initial start-up cost of the nursing program is estimated at $355,976, according to the feasibility study, with about $120,000 designated as one-time expenses for laboratory renovations, supplies, and other equipment. The rest of the expense covers first-year salaries and fringe benefits for a director and five faculty members and other indirect costs.

They have already been recording in their new studios, but when the new 16-track machine is installed, they hope to attract major recording artists to use the facilities. They report that the recording process is definitely a pressure situation both in time, because of high rates and the atmosphere of the big city. In Hughesville, it will be a very relaxing situation and so far they report their prices are "rock bottom." They hope to be able to record large as well as small groups and also do multi-media spots. Their 8-track equipment will be installed in a van so the studio can be taken on the road to record live concerts in auditoriums and clubs. Their new venture is called Green Valley Recording and is located at R. D. #2, Box 100, Hughesville, PA 17737.
